HOUR PARKING APPROVED BY COUNCIL

Claim $4,800 Rebate Power Over-Payment

Mayor Believes Company Should Have Found Error Before

The Office Specialty Manufacturing Co. has made a claim for $4,800, for overpayment to the town of electricity accounts, for which the company contends, it was billed in error.

The claim was before the council on Monday night. Calvin Rachar, town electrical engineer, stated that he had investigated and found that one of the contentions of the company, namely, that the wrong "multiplier" had been used in making up their accounts, was correct.

The company stated that they had made a claim in April, 1932, as the result of a faulty meter, for $1,100, and had accepted $700 in settlement. Members of the council stated that this was incorrect, that the settlement had been made in October, 1933, and that the company's claim should go back only that far.

The company also said that their minimum rate for power was one cent, whereas they understood that other power users had a minimum rate of one-quarter cent. The company asked an explanation.

N. L. Mathews, K. C., clerk and solicitor, stated that evidently someone had made an error in not informing the clerk's office when the meter and multiplier had been changed.

Charles J. Leacock, Sutton engineer, who assisted the town at the time of the previous claim in 1932 or 1933, was present on Monday evening. He said that the firm which had sold the new meter, and the town were both somewhat to blame, but "the company is principally to blame." He advised the town to settle "for $500 if you can."

Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd said that at the time of the previous settle-

PAYMENT DEFECTS ANNOY CITIZEN

In a letter to the town council, read at a meeting Monday evening, Alfred Archer complained regarding a hole in the pavement on Gormham St. The complaint was referred to Councillor Arthur Evans of the road and bridge committee.

Part of Lydia St. was closed by by-law. No formal objections had been received. N. L. Mathews, K. C., clerk and solicitor, stated.

ment the company "thought they were paying too much at $186. After the meter was fixed, their bill was $209. They should have seen that and pointed it out at the time."

"Somebody neglected to check the account," said Councillor W. W. Osborne.

"They claim we owe them $4,800," said Dr. Boyd. "We gave them a tax reduction during the depression."

"An assessment reduction of $40,000," said Mr. Mathews.

"That is $1,600 a year," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.

"How many years?" asked Dr. Boyd.

"Five years," Mr. Mathews said.

Mr. Leacock said that the town plant needed work in several directions, but that the weakest spot was the wiring between the Dixon Pencil Co. and the York County Hospital, which was carrying a heavy overload.

"It's the worst situation you have," said Mr. Leacock, advising immediate action.

"There is a danger of fire at the hospital," insisted Councillor Wm. Dixon, member of the hospital board, referring to the overloading of the wires.

Councillor W. W. Osborne said that the voltage at the hospital had been checked and was all right.

PASTOR PLAYED SUNDAY BALL AS A STUDENT

Visitor Is Not Enthusiastic About Sunday Sport

Canada will be fascist in five years. The fascists will get into the saddle in the course of a war which will break out in 1940. The war in 1940 will come as the result of the exhaustion of oil supplies in the United States and pressure of other countries on the United States for control of supplies in Mexico and other countries.

This is the opinion of Rev. Philip Matthews, St. Stephen's United church, Montreal, who preached at Trinity United church, Newmarket, on Sunday evening, expressing in an interview with The Era following the service.

Mr. Matthews is a young man, a graduate of McGill University, who won his letter in three different sports at university and was also editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily. In his own church at home he preaches a militant social gospel.

The real purpose of The Era was to secure Mr. Matthews' opinions on the use of the sabbath.

"Holy means wholesome," said Mr. Matthews. "Sunday is a day of 're-creation.' We are not machines. Even a machine in a factory must have a rest. Unfortunately, many people put the emphasis on the 're-creation' ('wreck-reation')."

"If you have been going into competitive business all week, you cannot re-create by going into competitive golf or competitive ball games on Sunday. If you have been doing only physical things during the week, you need

SIR WM. MULOCK

JOSEPH McCULLEY

Prime Minister King's Closest Friend Recalled

Sir William Tells Of Sawing And Splitting 200 Cords Of Wood

"Sir William Mulock used to live in a small house that still stands across from the high school," said Headmaster Joseph McCulley in introducing Sir William at a Pickering College dinner last evening.

"It is one of the famous houses of the dominion of Canada."

"Where we are tonight I recall my morning and evening duty of taking to the pasture—our cow."

Said Sir William, after presenting to the boys prizes he had given for the Harper memorial essay contest.

"My mother came to Newmarket, a widow woman, with a flock of five children, from the north country, where my father had died," he continued. "We occupied a house on what was called Pearson's Lane, not 100 yards from here."

"I think I can attribute part of my good health to the fact that we used 25 cords of wood every year. I never got far ahead with the wood supply. Cutting wood was a morning and evening duty with me from the time I was nine years old until I left Newmarket for university in 1889. If you multiply 25 by eight, you get 200 cords of wood. That is a better way to acquire health than by violent gymnastic exercises. I think I could compete with any of you today in sawing a cord of wood."

"The only real security of our country is the moral and spiritual quality of its people," Sir William told the boys.

Samuel Rogers, on behalf of the college board, staff and students, thanked Sir William.

Man Who Worked With Sir Wm. Mulock Honored

Sir William Mulock was the guest of honor at a complimentary dinner to the winners of the Harper memorial essay contest at Pickering college last evening. Headmaster Joseph McCulley presided.

The Harper memorial essay was sponsored by Sir William Mulock to draw the attention of the student body to the life, achievements and character of Henry Albert Harper, who lost his life in an unselfish effort to save a companion, a fellow member of a skating party, on the Ottawa River, December 6, 1901.

EXPECT MORE POLIO CASES THAN IN 1937

Cause Of Dread Disease Still Unknown, M.O.H. States

"After the large number of cases of infantile paralysis over the province last year, naturally people are expecting another epidemic of the same trouble this year, and in fact, already there have been a number of cases reported," stated Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., this week.

"During the first half of 1937 there were only 13 cases in Ontario, while the number for the last half of the year considerably exceeded 1,000," Dr. Wesley said. "In an address given to the annual health officers' meeting last week, the deputy-minister gave it as his opinion that we may expect even a larger number this year. This means that we should be making every possible arrangement, not only to cope with the disease when it comes, but to do what we can in the way of prevention."

"Last year the department of health sent representatives and investigated the origin of each case in order to determine the cause of the disease. Even the common house-fly did not escape the notice of these investigators, but so far we are as far as ever from the cause."

"And as to the means by which the little causative organism gains access to the body, there is a difference of opinion, some claiming it climbs into the brain by way of the nose and the special nerves of smell, others claiming that it gains a foothold in the human body, by way of the mouth and intestinal tract—but who can direct when all pretend to know."

"The department of health has done much to help the afflicted ones, even giving the attending doctors every kind of skilled assistance, specialists for consultations, prompt laboratory service, convalescent serum for treatment and hospitalization and skilled nursing for the paralyzed cases."

"Medical authorities have come to believe acute poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis is another acute infectious disease affecting the brain tissues and it may or may not be accompanied with paralysis of one or more parts of the body, thus stamping it as the most elusive and deceptive disease we have to deal with."

"As for preventive treatment, the nasal spray was roundly condemned by the deputy-minister in his address, and he further said that in some instances it had been a positive injury. His opinion as to dismissing the schools was that children were better at school. So it is more than likely the schools may continue this year even though we have another outbreak of this dreaded poliomyelitis."

By-Law Taken Out Of Moth Balls, Amended

Should Be Enforced Every Day Says Councillor Robinson

The town's long-standing but unenforced half-hour parking on Main St. by-law was changed to a one hour parking by-law, by the town council on Monday evening. The new by-law must be approved by the department of highways.

In addition to prohibiting parking for more than an hour at a time, on Main St. between Water and Millard, the by-law prohibits parking on the south side of the streets running west from Main St. to the radial right-of-way. Parking is also prohibited on the north side of Water St. west of Main, and on the north side of Timothy St. to a point 20 feet west of the east boundary of the market square.

The question arose in the council chamber as to whether the by-law was applicable every day or just on Saturdays.

"I would suggest that the requirements of the case differ on different days," said Reeve

DIVISION COURT CASES CONCERN AUTOMOBILES

Willis Widdifield, Stouffville, obtained judgment for $92.42 and costs against Elmer Drury, payment on purchase of a car, in division court here yesterday with Judge Jackson presiding.

In the action of W. Ellingham against John McGinn, Keswick, the claim of Mrs. McGinn that a car which had been seized belonged to her was dismissed.

NEW DATE ANNOUNCED

The mission circles of the Presbyterian W.M.S. will meet on Tuesday, June 14, at 2:45 p.m. instead of on the usual date.

Dr. L. W. Dales.

"The police commission have discretion to enforce the by-law as they see fit," said N. L. Mathews, K. C., clerk and solicitor.

"I have never seen a day yet, except Sunday, when that by-law shouldn't be enforced," said Councillor Frank Robinson.

THEY THINK THEY'RE FARMERS

Here are some of the members of the senior half of the junior grain club, sponsored by the Lions club and the department of agriculture. Moffat Cockburn, the agricultural representative, was the camera-man. Two or three of the Lions taking part were absent. The seed in the foreground was grown by Nell Farris, the high man in last year's junior club. From left to right: H. E. Lambert, T. F. Doyle, L. B. Rose, Frank Bowser, Albert Skelton, Fred Lundy, W. McNeill, North Bay, district passenger agent, C.N.R.; S. F. Baker, North Bay, travelling passenger agent, C.N.R.; C. O. Baker, North Bay, representing the T. & N. O. railway.

A NEWSPAPER HOLIDAY

No axe-grinding this week. These columns are going to carry an account of a three-day holiday enjoyed by the axe-grinders. The holiday was the annual convention of the Ontario-Quebec division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, which includes most of the English-language newspapers of the two provinces. The first day, spent in Toronto, consisted largely of business and educational discussions (the theme of all addresses being how the weekly may better serve its community). The second two days consisted of a visit to the mining towns of Timmins and Kirkland Lake, living throughout on cars provided by the C. N. R.

Not Profit-Seekers

Of course the weekly publisher has a pecuniary interest in serving his community better, as it is reasonable to suppose that the public will reward greater service with greater patronage. But we do not suppose that it would be possible to find anywhere a group of business men less interested in profit primarily than these weekly newspaper men. The fact is that to those to whom the weekly newspaper field has called insistently the job is so fascinating that profit is a secondary consideration. However, in this as in most other fields, there are those who make considerably more than a good living.

Guests Of The Globe And Mail

For lunch on Thursday, the first day of the convention, we were guests of Mr. George McCullagh, the young publisher of the Globe and Mail, in the cafeteria of the new Wm. H. Wright building. The party were escorted into a luxurious office on one of the upper floors. There were no papers lying about. There was no sign of business or bustle. The furniture consisted of a beautiful desk, a Chesterfield suite and a heavy thick carpet that made you think you were in Persia. There was a picture of a private soldier, behind the desk. This, we guessed correctly, was a picture of "old Bill," owner of the newspaper, and this, we guessed incorrectly, was the office of the publisher, Mr. McCullagh. It was the office of Mr. Harry Kimber, the general manager. We filed through this office into a spick-and-span secretarial office, where two typists clicked away, sitting back to back, one facing the office we had just left and the other facing the office we were about to enter. The secretarial office, incidentally, was separated from the main passageway by a wall of glass, several thicknesses, which admitted light but through which you could not see and through which no sound came. We were told that this glass construction is sometimes used for the outside wall of buildings.

"By Remote Control"

Then we passed into the office of Mr. McCullagh, where a big over-grown boy, frank of countenance and friendly and hearty of manner, was welcoming members of the association. Later on, in the cafeteria, Mr. McCullagh addressed us on the responsibilities of the press. Incidentally, he said that, if he was ruling Ontario, it must be by "remote control," for he hadn't seen Mr. Hepburn for months. From Mr. McCullagh's office we passed into Mr. Wright's private apartment, which included a bedroom, a private office, a dining-room and a kitchenette. Mr. Wright lives in Barrie, but when he is in the city overnight stays at his apartment. Of the Wright building we will say no more, except that the huge press could print a newspaper three times the size of the Globe and Mail and of the same circulation in an hour and a half, yet space has been left for installation, when need arises, of a second unit of the same size.

The True North, Strong And Free

Our next high spot was Timmins, on the following day, when we were guests of the Porcupine Advance, the Timmins board of trade, and the Hollinger gold mine. Timmins, Schumacher and immediate district have a population of 30,000 people, of whom 2,000 are unemployed, and 3,000 work in the Hollinger mine, the only mine we visited in the Porcupine district. Shafts have been sunk down one mile in this mine and still no end has been found to the mineral-bearing ore. We were given rubber-boots, rubber capes, rubber caps and an electric lamp with a storage battery on a belt. Going down the mine elevator we were told to gulp air to overcome the feeling of pressure on our ears. We were taken to the 3800-foot level, three-quarters of a mile into the earth, and then escorted about through some of the winding tunnels, which follow the quartz veins where the gold is found.

Profit Margin Close

A narrow railway runs along each of these passages, cut out of the solid rock, to carry trolleys full of ore. In higher levels all of the ore has been taken out and been replaced by supports. We were told that there are 250 miles of railway in the Hollinger mine. The ore is worth only about $5 a ton, and that the production is about a ton and a half a man per day. As the minimum wage is considerably over $4 a day, the margin of profit is not great.

Line Fence Troubles

In places, our party guide, an engineer named Ward from Toronto, told us, the Hollinger tunnellers have broken into the McIntyre mine tunnellers. One of the jobs of the engineers is to determine what the underground boundaries of the mines are.

Mushroom City

Timmins itself was interesting. We saw our travelling companion, Hon. Paul Leduc, Ontario minister of mines, open a new $30,000 municipal building, and we saw dozens of new schools and churches, and the largest high school building we have ever seen. The child population of Timmins increases at the rate of a class-room a month. One section of the town consisted entirely of monotonous company houses, street after street of them, all alike. Someone said that when you have lived in one of them, you have lived in all of them. They are rented at $17 a month. Most of the streets are unpaved and are none too good. The town is suffering from growing pains.

A Familiar Face

Among familiar faces in Timmins was the beaming countenance of Fred Penrose of Newmarket, who is enjoying life in the northern town, working in a store.

Say It Ten Times And It's Yours

While we are still in Timmins, let us repeat an interesting statement. Every 40 days, there is brought to the surface of the Porcupine mines solid rock equivalent in bulk to the Bank of Commerce building in Toronto. This amount of ore produces $4,690,000 in gold, or the equivalent of a block of solid gold three feet four inches in length by a foot and a half square at the ends.

A Strong Press

From Timmins we went to Kirkland Lake, where we visited the Northern News published by Charles Tresidder, formerly of Newmarket. This is one of the most up-to-date newspaper offices in Ontario, outside the larger cities. The News, published twice a week, is our idea of a good newspaper. It is attractive in appearance, and strong and rugged as the north country in its news interpretation and editorial opinions.

The entire party were guests of Mr. Tresidder for lunch. He was assisted in entertaining by members of his staff, including Miss Ann Braley, who is sometimes a visitor in Newmarket.

Refining The Gold

At Kirkland some of our party visited the Wright-Hargreaves mine, or the Globe and Mail mine as they call it in Kirkland Lake, and some of us went to the Lake Shore mine. We were taken to Wright-Hargreaves and were taken through the mill. We saw the ore crushed to a powder, the gold dissolved in a cyanide solution, and separated from the "tailings." The gold in solution in cyanide was as clear as maple sap in appearance, but we were told that one drink would be fatal. We were shown how the gold was precipitated out of the solution by the addition of zinc, and then put in a furnace and separated from the zinc and other minerals remaining in solution. We did not see the gold bricks poured, as they are poured only twice a week: The slag left after the gold is poured off is sent to Noranda to be refined and brings $50 a ton. Incidentally, we learned that the ore at Kirkland Lake is worth about $18 a ton, giving a much more comfortable margin of profit than at Timmins.

No Sympathy Needed

In closing, let us say that we did not feel overcome with sympathy for the residents of the north country, who feel themselves entitled to better roads and a larger share of the taxation on mines, but we were impressed with the tremendous wealth of the north country, the hospitality and good fellowship of the northerners, and we are sure that this north country will return dividends on whatever investment in roads the provincial government may see fit to make. We would not advise individuals who cannot afford to take a long chance to invest in untried gold mines, for we were told that 75 per cent of mines are no good, and it is obvious that a mine might be fairly good and still never pay dividends for lack of sufficient capital for proper development. The gold is extracted from the rock at tremendous cost. As one speaker told us, the saying that "gold is where you find it," should really be, and he quoted from the Bible in support of his contention, "gold is where you fine it." We were also told that not a few mines are promoted as rackets but break no law.

Courage Founded A Strange Industry

We could not help but wonder at the courage of the men who originally explored the north country and found its riches. We still wonder, however, at man in digging the gold out of the safety of northern Ontario rocks and burying it again in the vaults at Washington.

THE YOUTH CONGRESS

(Contributed by Muriel Thorpe, King City)

What a thrill I received as I sat in the Third Canadian Youth Congress sessions held in Toronto a couple of weeks ago. There were many features of the congress that constituted this thrill.

Firstly, to think that so many young people of Canada, irrespective of race, creed, religious or political convictions, were tolerant and broad-minded enough to assemble for three days to discuss the problems facing the youth of Canada; that this was not just a case of making social contact but all delegates were hard-working representatives of their organizations and put considerable and deep thought on each issue, as it was brought to the fore, that they all were trying to find a plan whereby they could develop a better Canada; that there was a feeling of Christian brotherhood during the whole of the congress.

The Youth Congress is only a mere name to many people of the rural communities. Therefore, I would like to give, if possible, a little light in this direction.

The congress is not a set organization but more of an assembly of youth. It does not rule anyone out but rather tends and urges every organization to come in, because if all organizations are not represented it will not be the voice of the youth of the country.

The congress studies many phases and problems of the country, both urban and rural. I will mention a few such problems, slum clearance, housing, youth training, civil liberties, internal and world peace and unemployment.

Canada should be proud to think her youth are so seriously and sincerely accepting the responsibilities of a better and healthier future Canada.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville
LOVE IS EVERYDAY LIFE

Note—This paper was given at the June 1 meeting of the Fine Orchard Willing Workers held at the home of Mrs. Frank Playter, Newmarket, and is inserted in this column by request.

When George Matheson wrote—

O love that will not let me go,
I rest my weary soul in thee;
I give thee back the life I owe,
That in thine ocean depths its flow

May richer, fuller be—he was blind, and realized that the one thing on which he could depend was the "Love that followed all his way."

And when Professor Henry Drummond lectured to the students at Oxford University in 1839, the great Scotsman took for his theme "Love—the greatest thing in the world."

And can we imagine anything greater when St. John says "God is Love."

Love includes everything else—if we truly love we will try for one thing to be patient with the little faults—the small daily irritations which sometimes seem so hard to bear.

I have heard it said that it is easier to be patient with strangers than with our own. I suppose pride for one thing, will keep us from showing temper before a stranger, whereas it is so easy to say a cutting thing to those dear to us, almost before we think. If we love enough, it smooths the rough places. If God were impatient with us, every time of the many that we must hurt him, what hope would there be for us.

Then there is kindness. We so often neglect the little kindnesses we might do for one another, and the kindly word that can comfort a sore heart, and we all have sore hearts sometimes.

Then look at the people here, in the country. There are all the living things that look to us for care and food. If we truly love God how can we help but love the creatures of His creation? for we are told that "not a sparrow falleth" without His knowledge and whenever I see cruelty in children or adults, I feel that that saying of Christ's should be hung in every school and Sunday-school.

Generosity too, springs from love. If we love, we love to give. For we have all something we can give others. We can give love, sympathy, understanding, friendship, as well as money. These are all cups of cold water. And this kind of giving always comes back. How often one says a kindly thing and finds echoes of it years afterwards, for isn't it Longfellow who says, "Talk not of wasted affection, Affection never was wasted. If it enrich not another, Its waters returning Back to their springs, like the rain."

Charity, too, is the outcome of love—the charity which thinks and speaks no evil of anyone. I think uncharitableness is the sin of the age, and the hardest to contend with. If we could only say with Bobbie Burns "Oh would some power the giftie gie us To see ourselves as others see us."

It might help us to be more lenient to the failings of others, and to look first to see if we were free from the failings we deplore in others.

We cannot live without love. Think what our daily lives would be if we had no one to love or to love us. To me the thought is appalling. I think every year, that my love for inanimate things grows deeper—simple, everyday things which surround us and which we are apt to take as a matter of course. The blue of the sky, its sunset hues of rose and gold, the trees like black lace against the evening gold, the sound of the wind in the trees, all these, if one opens one's mind to them, teach one to love nature, and to absorb some of her beauty and peace.

Then most of all, there are the little children, for I love them, altho' I have none, and I often think how much love must be needed to make parents and teachers patient and understanding from day to day, and to give each of us strength to live in a way a child can follow, and follow safely to the end of the road.

After all, it all comes back to the golden rule, for if we do unto others as we would have them do to us, we are loving them, and St. Paul says that "Love is the fulfilling of the Law."

Have you ever thought of all that means—that if we love others we cannot break either God's law or man's law.

Love can do anything in the world, for when we do things in love, we have God with us, and with Him, who can fail. "Though an host of men encamp about me, Yet have I put my trust in Him, For in the time of trouble, He shall hide me in His pavilion,

In the secret places of His dwelling shall He hide me."
Every day is a day to love someone, to do some loving act, speak some loving word, and send some kindly thought out to some one who needs it.

Sometimes when the "daily round, the trivial task" seem pretty monotonous, I try to have a few quiet moments to set my spiritual and mental house in order, to get away by myself and think of real things.

Then the little trials and troubles come down to their actual size and I find that:

The daily round, the trivial task Will furnish all we need to ask— Room to deny ourselves—a road To lead us daily nearer God.

Love is an active force. It doesn't do to just sit back and think "How I love this one or that," or "I had no time today to do things for either love of God or man."

I found this poem which shows how love can find its way into the simplest things—

THE DIVINE OFFICE OF THE KITCHEN

By Cecily Hallack

Lord of the pots and pipkins, since I have no time to be A saint by doing lovely things and vigiling with Thee,

By watching in the twilight dawn, and storming Heaven's gates,

Make me a saint by getting meals, and washing up the plates!

Lord of the pots and pipkins, please, I offer Thee for souls,

The tiredness of tea-leaves, and the sticky porridge bowls!

Remind me of the things I need, not just to save the stairs, But so that I may perfectly lay tables into prayers.

Accept my roughened hands because I made them so for Thee!

Pretend my dishcloth is a bowl, which heavenly harmony Makes on a fiddle frying pan; it is so hard to clean.

And ah, so horrid! Hear, dear Lord, the music that I mean!

Although I must have Martha hands, I have a Mary mind,

And when I black the boots, I try Thy sandals, Lord to find.

I think of how they trod our earth, what time I scrub the floor.

Accept this meditation when I haven't time for more!

Vespers and Complime come to pass by washing supper things

And, mostly, I am very tired; and all the heart that sings

About the morning's work is gone before me into bed.

Lend me, dear Lord, Thy Tireless Heart, to work in me instead!

Warm all the kitchen with Thy Love, and light it with Thy Peace!

Forgive the worrying, and make the grumbling words to cease.

Lord, who had breakfast on the shore, forgive the world which saith

"Can any good thing come to God out of poor Nazareth?"

So let us think that love is the salt that adds savor to the most distasteful tasks and sweetens the bitterest trials.

When we think that life is too hard; that we are having more than our share of the misfortunes which come in some shape to us all, when we feel bitter against friend or foe, there is one great healing power that will flow over us if we ask for it—the power of love.

So, I can end no better than as I began, with the beautiful assurance that Love is the greatest thing in the world!

TWO MOTHERS COMPARE NOTES

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"Yes, my husband has promised to look after the babies for an hour or two, while I get out and have a brief visit with a few of my friends," confided Mrs. Chikadee to her friend, young Mrs. Nuthatch. "So I just thought I'd drop over and see how you were."

"Oh, busy as can be," replied the Nuthatch lady. "This family of mine seems to be always busy. But what do you think? Four of my six children are out of the nest! The other two are just lazy, I guess. I've been coaxing them and coaxing them, but they won't get out!"

"Aren't you afraid that the ones that are out of the nest will meet with accidents?" questioned Mrs. Nuthatch. "I'm sure mine are about ready to leave, because they are very bright children. I think, but I'm so nervous about them getting out of the nest that I haven't been encouraging the idea at all."

"It's certainly an anxious time when they are just toddling around," agreed Mrs. Nuthatch. "Of course, my children are a week or so older than yours and they are a little more experienced. Oh, there's one of them now. Be careful, dear, when you're coming down the stairs." She called. "Don't go too far!"

"Why, I'd be simply terrified to have them going down the tree trunk, head downwards like that," exclaimed Merry.

"It is a bit nerve-racking at first, to try to teach them," admitted Mrs. Nuthatch. "As a matter of fact, one of them did have a tumble yesterday, while she was going upwards. But they pick up our unusual system of climbing up and down the tree-trunks very quickly."

"I'm so worried at the thought of teaching our children to fly," said Merry. "I don't feel as if I were capable of teaching them according to the best modern methods."

"Oh, you'll be able to teach them all right," Mrs. Nuthatch assured her. "And after all, you have one less to teach than we have. I'm very pleased that our young ones are so intelligent, however, and are leaving home quickly, because that will mean that the second brood will be pretty well grown before the summer's over."

"You will have a big family, then," said Merry. "We are having only the one brood of young ones. And I must get on my way," Merry added. "I do hope I haven't been unwise in staying away so long. Young Chips may have done something unwise with the children. Men are so absent-minded and careless, sometimes. He may have forgotten to feed them, even."

"Now, now, don't fuss, my dear," said Mrs. Nuthatch. "Why not run over to that pasture over there, with me, and see Mrs. Scarle!"

POLICE COURT WILL NOT ADMIT GASOLINE THEFT

A total of 95 charges were placed before Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe at the local police court here on Tuesday. Of this number 25 cases were adjourned or remanded one week.

Among the adjournments were the four charges laid against William Jordan, King township farmer, for infringements of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act, fraud, and entering cattle in a quarantined area for bovine tuberculosis. This case was given another adjournment because the chief witness was ill.

The three charges of theft, reckless driving, and receiving stolen goods, laid against Archie Foster, Newmarket, were remanded one week. Foster is out on bail of $200. Jack H. Carly, who is out on bail of $500 for driving under the influence of liquor, and reckless driving, was also given an adjournment.

Charged with unlawful possession of black bass, William Bentley was fined $10 and costs, or ten days.

"I found two large black bass in a steel box rolled up in a blanket at the back of a boat," testified Game Warden Ernest Prosser. "The boat was in the river at Fefferlaw. There were two other men in the boat with Bentley but he took the blame for the fish."

"How big were the fish?" questioned N. L. Mathews, K. C. for the crown.

"They were between three and four pounds," answered Mr. Prosser.

"I think you're trying to advertise the good fishing," laughed the crown.

A charge of unlawful possession of liquor was changed to consuming and George E. Benton, Toronto, was fined $10 and costs, or 15 days and the liquor confiscated.

"I found the accused sleeping in a car parked near the dance hall at Musselman's Lake," testified Constable Aubrey Fleury. "In the back of the car I found a full bottle of wine with the seal unbroken. Benton appeared in an intoxicated condition."

Mr. Benton testified he had a drink earlier in the evening in Toronto before coming to the dance hall. He had bought the wine to have over the weekend and hadn't opened the bottle, which was bought under the Liquor Control Act.

A witness, Wm. Robertson, Toronto, testified he had tried to wake Benton up. He admitted it was wrong to have the liquor, but didn't think it was so bad when the seal hadn't been broken.

A similar charge of illegal possession of liquor laid against Francis S. Tomlinson, Toronto, was also changed to consuming, on consent of the crown and accused was fined $10 and costs, and the liquor was ordered to be confiscated.

"I searched Tomlinson's car at Musselman's Lake," testified Constable Fleury. "I found six quart bottles in the back of the car, four of which were full. There were two other men in the car but Tomlinson admitted he had bought the beer. The accused was not intoxicated but his breath smelled of liquor."

Convicted on two charges of possessing burglary tools and attempted theft, Leo Flannigan, Balliol Ave., Toronto, was remanded in custody one week for sentence.

Flannigan pleaded not guilty on both charges and was not represented by counsel.

The charge of having burglary tools was heard first.

"About 2:40 a.m. on Friday, May 27, I noticed a car coming south stop at the corner of Yonge and Wellington Sts. in Aurora," testified Constable Fisher Dunham. "A man got out, walked down as far as Ough's gas pumps, and after looking at them went across the road to Morning's Garage on the east side, where he again looked at the pumps and then went up near the garage. I didn't recognize the man at the time, as I was sitting in my car. Then I saw the man go back to his car which he brought down to Morning's pumps. He got out and looked around, then went back to the car."

"A short time after, I heard a noise that sounded like breaking a lock, then I heard a sawing as if trying to saw the lock on the pumps," continued Constable Dunham. "He got some gas out, as one half gallon was found missing next morning. As the man got in his car to go south, I stopped him and asked what he had been doing and he said nothing. I took away his car keys and left him in the car while I went to examine the pumps. I found the lock had been sawed and the hose also. I went back to the car and found a hacksaw in the front seat. The blade was out of the back-saw under the seat. Constable Fleury and I took the accused to the jail farm. I didn't question the man at all except when I first arrested him."

William Morning, owner of the garage, testified he had locked the pumps as usual and went home about 11:30 p.m. He testified that the broken lock and pump were his. The next morning he found that half a gallon of gas was missing.

"I borrowed a car to go up to Sharon to see my wife and children," testified Leo Flannigan. "I ran out of gas in Aurora on my way home and got out and hailed a transport. They said they had no way of getting any gas. I used the starter and brought my car near the post office where there are two tanks. I tried to stop some cars but they went on. The transport man said likely someone was sleeping in the garage, so I banged on the door. Then two Newmarket men started to bang on the cafe door and that was the banging Dunham heard. I tried again to stop some cars but without avail so I started away but Dunham put handcuffs on me and placed me under arrest."

"The man who owns the car is a service man and he uses the hacksaw in his work and had left it in the car," continued Flannigan. "I never noticed the hacksaw on the seat. I didn't touch the locks or use a saw on them."

"How did the saw mark get on the pump?" questioned the crown.

"I couldn't tell you," answered Flannigan.

"Did you see anyone else sawing that night?"

"No."

"Did you see any gas leaking out?"

"No."

"There will be a conviction on this charge," stated the magistrate.

On the second charge, Constable Dunham and Mr. Morning gave the same evidence as on the first charge, but Flannigan didn't give any evidence.

"It wouldn't do me any good to steal as I have a wife and children to support," stated Flannigan. "I haven't used a hacksaw for ten years, when I used one to cut pipes while I was working at the golf course."

"There will be a conviction on this charge also," said the magistrate. "Has this man a criminal record?"

"I was given suspended sentence last year for beating my wife."

A character witness, Peter Burke, stated he had known the accused for five years and had hired him off and on. He would give Flannigan a job now but it wouldn't be permanent.

Charged with common assault against Mrs. Mabel Rogers, Henry Graham, King township, was fined $1 and costs of $11.75 or ten days imprisonment.

According to evidence given by Mrs. Rogers, the accused struck her with his clenched fist, giving her a black eye and a large swelling on the cheek. He also broke the glass in one of the car windows and shoved her around.

Constable Ronald Watt, who was called to the scene by Mrs. Rogers, testified that her face was hurt. Graham told Constable Watt that Mr. and Mrs. Rogers had refused to leave his house where they were making a disturbance, as there was a little boy sick.

Dr. L. W. Dales testified Mrs. Rogers had a black eye and cuts on the cheek and over the eye. Mrs. Rogers' clothes were also torn.

Mrs. Geo. Graham, William Graham, and Henry Graham all testified that Mrs. Rogers had been asked to leave but refused to do this, so Graham shoved her. The magistrate said that Graham had used more force than necessary to get Mrs. Rogers out.

Convicted on a charge of reckless driving, Acl Miller, Keswick, was fined $10 and costs of $12.50, or 15 days. The magistrate didn't suspend the accused's license, as he depends on driving a truck for his living.

Mrs. Lloyd Kay, Belhaven, testified she was looking after her husband's garage when she saw the truck driven by Miller in broad daylight hit a car parked just off the edge of the road. Their bumpers locked and the car was hit a second time. Miller got out of his truck and seemed to have been drinking, in Mrs. Kay's opinion. He started up the truck and drove recklessly, almost knocking over the gas pumps.

"Miller paid for the damages to the car, and he didn't do any damage to the pumps did he?" questioned K. M. R. Stiver, counsel for Miller.

"No."

Both Mrs. Herman Stevenson, who witnessed the accident, and Constable Morton, who was called, testified the accused had been drinking. Constable Morton said that after the accused had settled with the driver, he started off in his truck and drove in such a reckless manner that he followed him and took the truck away from him, as he didn't seem in a fit condition to drive.

"If Miller's license is suspended, his employer won't hire him and this is his means of earning a living," stated Mr. Stiver.

"He should know that liquor and gas don't mix," said the magistrate. "It looks like Miller is trying to take away his own living."

Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by daughter Anna.

Furrow's End

BY LEONARD HARMAN

"Well, the gasoline tax is as fair as any," said Elmer. "Even the millionaires have to pay that," he added, as a sly joke about my recent criticism in this column of certain local expenditures.

Elmer does not drive a car, while I do. But I cannot say that I have any grave objection to paying my six cents a gallon, provided that this tax is used to construct and maintain the highways over which I travel. At the same time I wish to question the ultimate source of the gasoline tax.

Suppose I am raising hogs for market. I buy lumber to construct a pen for them and have this lumber trucked out from town. By one means or another not only the sales tax on building materials but the increase in trucking charges due to the gasoline tax is passed on to be paid by the purchaser as a part of the retail price.

Now I shall pass some six months of hog husbandry and watch the finished pigs on their way to market at the stock yards. The price is pretty well set because of monopoly conditions in packing whereby two companies control 85 per cent of the industry. My load of hogs is beyond my control once I turn it over to the trucker. The trucker charges a rate for transportation based on his trucking costs. If his costs are increased by a tax on the gasoline he uses, he passes along the amount in a higher rate which I pay whether I like it or not.

Elmer lives in town and buys his bacon at the local shop. The bacon is hauled from the big city to the town in another gasoline-driven truck and delivered to Mr. Elmer in a third. The packing company manages to exact its profits as, according to the price spreads report, it has done all through the depression. The local retailer does his best to keep his margin favorable.

The changes between the loading chute where I chase out the hogs and the table where Elmer crunches his bacon, are pretty well fixed in the interest of those who are concerned with their own profit rather than my income and Elmer's expenditure. Additional costs are passed either forward to the consumer, who is unorganized and undefended, or backward to the primary producer, who is equally undefended.

All of which, in my opinion, goes to show that the gasoline tax is to a very great extent passed on to Elmer and me, who pay it whether we drive autos or not.

MOURN LOSS OF CHURCH WORKER

On Sunday evening, May 29, after a lengthy illness, borne with the exemplary patience and Christian fortitude that characterized her whole beautiful life, there passed on to higher service, in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, Laura Maretta Arnold, the wife of Wm. Hadden.

She was born at Baldwin, and on June 24, 1902, was married and settled with her husband at Egypt, later moving to Virginia Beach.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Angus, two daughters, Mrs. Randall Wood (Della) of Havelock, and Mabel at home; her mother, Mrs. Geo. Arnold, two brothers and one sister in U.S.A., one brother, Jack, of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. W. Lyons of Westlake of Sunderland.

A life's devotion to her family and her church remains as an inspiration to her hosts of sorrowing relatives and friends. The remodelling and maintenance of Virginia United church were largely due to her untiring efforts.

Hundreds who came as strangers to her home in summer, left invigorated in health and happiness, and treasuring a new and valued friendship, formed by contact with her happy, sympathetic nature. No trouble was too small to call forth kindly interest, and comfort, while anyone's happiness was a joy to her.

In the early autumn her health began to fail, and all that skilled medical attention and unceasing, loving nursing could do, was of no avail. After a two months' rest in Havelock, she was removed to Peterborough.

The funeral was one of the largest ever seen in this district, the service being conducted by the pastor, Rev. N. S. Anderson, B.A.

Floral tributes of sympathy were received from: the community of Virginia; Junior Farmers of Belhaven; mother and sisters; Miss Rita Spencer; Mrs. and Miss Weeden; Mrs. Woodburn and Jack; Alex. Rutledge and family; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Smithurst; the Corbett family; Mr. and Mrs. Bennett; Mr. and Mrs. Bruijs; Mr. and Mrs. Haggood; Mrs. M. A. Hurell; Mrs. G. Fountain; Mr. and Mrs. H. Hall; Mr. and Mrs. G. Todd; Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson Walton; Eileen; Mr. and Mrs. W. Horner; Mr. Alex. Willis and family; Mr. and Mrs. C. Horner.

The pallbearers were Elymer Ray, Ed. Cronaherry, Wm. C. Evans, Geo. Watt, Lyman E. Faed and Bert Thompson.

Among those from a distance were Mrs. Switzer, Mr. Johnson Ellemore; Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Doral, all of Toronto.

She was laid to rest in the picturesque cemetery of Briar Hill, Sutton West.

ASK FOR DONATIONS FOR RUG MAKING

The monthly meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held last Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. A. J. Patstone. It was to have been held on the rectory lawn, but the shower in the morning made it impossible to sit out-of-doors. There was a good turnout of the members.

To take the place of the discarded magazine and newspaper collection, the proceeds for the sale of which were used to aid in the work, the ladies decided to solicit discarded house-dresses or suitable clothing, that can be cut into strips and made into the woven washable mats that they have always made and sent to headquarters, and take orders and sell them to their Newmarket friends. They are well and strongly woven by a Newmarket weaver and can be had with a stripe of any desired color at the ends, or even solid color for the whole. Friends are asked to please help when the autumn season of work re-open, by getting in touch with any member of the W.A. if they have any contributions.

Today the Newmarket branch, augmented by the Sharon members, is attending the 10th annual Woman's Auxiliary conference of the deanery of West York held at Trinity United church, Aurora.

PAST PRESIDENTS IN CHARGE AT W. A.

The Woman's Association of Trinity United church held a past presidents' day at their meeting on Thursday last. There were 45 present.

Mrs. W. E. Richardson presided over the devotional period. Mrs. Richardson was president for 18 years. Other past presidents assisting were Mrs. L. Atkinson, Mrs. W. J. Thompson and Mrs. J. Murphy. Mrs. S. King gave a very fine report of the semi-annual conference held here on May 18.

Rev. R. H. McMath, pastor, was present and gave a very interesting review of the history of Trinity United church since its beginning 100 years ago.

Mrs. C. Callery gave a very interesting talk from her wide experience as past president of Women's Associations and the Women's Missionary Society and on the executive of the Day of the Quins conference branch. Those present were delighted to have the opportunity of hearing her and hope she will speak here again in the near future.

Mrs. L. Rolph, accompanied by Mrs. G. Russell contributed a solo which was much enjoyed. A short business meeting followed when the sale of goods at the late Miss Haight's residence on Friday, June 10, was arranged. Activities were suggested for the months of June and July.

W.C.T.U. WILL MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held at the home of Miss Leonora Starr, 98 Prospect Ave., on Tuesday, June 14, at 3 p.m.

A member of an old pioneer Newmarket family, Theda Fraser Fierheller, widow of the late John P. Meyer, died here on Sunday evening, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Meyer was the daughter of Emily Dawson, of Dawson Manor, Yonge St., and the late Nelson Fierheller. She married John Meyer in 1913. She is survived by her mother, one daughter, Joy, and one son, John, both of Toronto.

Mrs. Meyer was a member of St. Paul's Anglican church. The funeral was held at the church on Tuesday, with Rev. E. L. Wasson of the Church of the Transfiguration, Toronto, conducting the service, assisted by Rev. A. J. Patstone. Interment was made in Newmarket cemetery.

RELIEF BILL GOES DOWN COMPARED WITH 1937

Relief in May was less than in May a year ago, Councillor A. V. Higginson, chairman of the relief committee, reported to the town council on Tuesday evening.

During May there were 31 heads of families, 80 dependents and four single persons on relief. The total cost was $700, compared with something over $900 a year ago.

"Are you giving relief to the heads of families?" questioned Councillor Wm. Dixon.

"In some cases," Mr. Higginson said.

"Where absolutely necessary," said Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd.

"The relief committee is using good judgment," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dates.

Rev. C. E. Fockler occupied the pulpit for both services on Sunday. In the morning he spoke briefly on several outstanding addresses which had been part of the program of the conference which he attended last week in Toronto.

Contributions for the M. and M. fund of the church will be accepted up to next Sunday.

The regular meeting of the W.A. was held on Thursday, June 2. It was decided not to have any supper in July, but instead, to have just the business meeting when final plans for the annual bazaar will be made. The date of the bazaar is to be July 27. Further particulars will follow at a later date.

Mrs. O. Huntley, Mrs. Hilborn and Mrs. Pedlar were in charge of the arrangements for the lovely supper which was served from flower decorated tables.

At a public meeting held on Monday evening in the public school, a Boy Scout group for the community was organized under the direction of Edgar Jones of Toronto.

An advisory committee was formed. Byron King was appointed scoutmaster, with Richard Whipple as assistant. This is a very worthwhile undertaking which has long been needed in Keswick, and one in which the parents and friends of the boys will be vitally interested.

The W.I. will meet for their regular meeting on Tuesday. A very special feature will be Dr. Campbell of Toronto, who will speak on "Public Hygiene for Rural Communities."

Everyone, whether members or not, will be most welcome. There will be community singing, also special music.

Mount Pleasant

There seems no scarcity of rain these days and it is making the hay look as though it would be an abundant crop. Gardens are looking fine, as well as the fall wheat and the spring grain. The frost two weeks ago nipped some of the gardens. Strawberries will soon be on the bill of fare.

ABOUT TOWN

WE PLAN TO DIE

"In the last war we thought we were fighting for a moral issue, but when it was over we began to think we had got a wrong slant on it." . . . the words are those of a Newmarket minister interviewed by The Era last week.

The minister stated that he supposed he had done some indirect recruiting from the pulpit in the last war. He did not think he would do so again, in the event of another war.

Honesty and a degree of courage were required to say those words. One reason why war is not more wholeheartedly denounced today is that many of us are afraid to admit that we fought in the last war inspired by a moral issue that did not, in fact, exist.

Believing the posters which stated, "Your King and country need you!" our brothers and fathers enlisted in the war which, we were told, was to save democracy and end war for all time. Many died for this belief.

Honesty and courage, we say again, are required to admit they died in vain . . . war threatens now as it has threatened never before in the history of man. The conquered nations are ready to conquer. The victors—if there were any—cannot now be recognized as such.

Will the church lead the parade or follow it in the next war? Will they lead it to war or to peace? Will the wise and well paid elected representatives of this and other alleged democracies again permit suicidal mass conflict, or are they planning with other nations for world peace?

The reason this column returns to this subject so frequently is because we believe we shall shortly—for the second time in a short life—see a world at war. And when we are conscripted for service—as we shall be—we want our small world to know we are fully aware of the stupidity of our actions. That, dear disgusted reader, is the extent of our concern.

When we are sent to a training camp to get healthy as the mischiefs—so that we will take a little longer to kill—the smile on our face will not be inspired by a high spirit of service to democracy . . . it will simply be a grin of despair, that we had not the grit to be a pacifist.

And we will die, mayhap, blessed by the church and with the gratitude of a government that had a department of defence, but no department of peace. Our only hope is that nothing in our actions may inspire anyone else to do likewise. If there would appear to be any danger of this, we would appreciate it if some innocent bystander would read this column over our corpse, if he can find the corpse . . . and if he can find the column.

GOODY-GOODY FOR US

When we first came, fresh and green, from the big city to live in a country town, we anticipated a life of almost unbearable quietude. Country towns, we had been taught to expect, were "dead." We know better now.

The past few years have taught us that life is lived far more abundantly in country towns. People in Aurora, for example, can give their city cousins many lessons in the profitable and enjoyable use of leisure time.

Here, we find, people have learned to enjoy themselves—which is a little different from paying others to provide enjoyment for them, as is more usually the case in the city.

Aurorans attend fewer symphonies, perhaps, than do the folk in Toronto. But we're willing to bet our new suit—and we prize it highly—that a greater proportion of Aurorans can and do play musical instruments than in the city of narrow streets.

More Torontonians see hockey games—but more Aurorans, comparatively speaking, play hockey. And membership in women's groups, young people's societies, clubs and lodges gives Aurora a more communal living than is found in larger centres.

Before we got too self-satisfied, however, it might be well to consider if we've gone quite far enough in maintaining our better standard. There is a saying—worse luck—that business should come before pleasure.

Would it not be possible for Aurorans to work collectively for a higher individual pay check?

You've guessed it . . . we are about to suggest, for the umpteenth time, that we organize to grab a larger chunk of the tourist's bank roll. For instance—

Aurora's restaurant facilities have increased this spring and before summer is gone will increase still more.

Aurora is becoming more and more a place to stop for a meal—a tank full of gas—a toothbrush—a pair of sun goggles—or a fresh pair of socks. With the restaurants leading the way, other merchants could well profit. Store

W. M. S. CELEBRATES FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

An address, "We women, our sphere of influence," by Dr. Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of a former Aurora minister, formed the feature of the program presented in the Aurora United church last Thursday, when the Aurora auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society celebrated the 50th anniversary of its founding.

Dr. Stewart stated that women could do much for the world by asserting their fundamental qualities of tenderness, gentleness and sympathy.

Visitors Beat Aurora In Hard-Fought Game

Locals Come From Behind Only To Lose Lead In Eighth

WHITE STARS IN FIELD

Bunching their hits in the first and eighth innings, Newmarket nosed out Aurora's softball squad in the latter's home park on Tuesday night. Aurora came from behind to lead by one run at the seventh, only to have the opposition regain the lead and keep it, despite the fact that the Aurorans loaded the bases in the final inning.

The game was a thriller from start to finish and served to verify the opinion that there is not a weak team in the group. Every game is a ball game and the crowd at the Tuesday night tussle showed that the fans are waking up to the fact.

If fans would also wake up to the fact that crowding in on the base lines can cost their team a ball game, as it did on Tuesday night, the Aurorans can be counted on to give a good account of themselves.

On two occasions flies went into the crowd. Both were fair, so far as the umpire could see, but the crowd would not allow him to see much. Two runs were chalked up by Newmarket, at a crucial point in the game, as a result.

Newmarket started off with a flourish in the first inning with Smith, Cunningham and Gibney giving them a three-run lead. Aurora batters were held at first base and hits by "Ninny" Heaney, Shropshire, Helmkey and Ted Heaney were rendered useless as the first three were forced out at second base.

Both sides were scoreless in the second and Newmarket failed to tally in the third. White hit to second and came home for Aurora's first counter when a fly from Ninny Heaney's bat was badly muffed.

Two Newmarket batters, Chuck VanZant and "Peewee" Hilton, got to bases in the fourth inning, but they died there when Wiff White raced in from centre field to make a wonderful catch, his second in the inning.

"Speedy" Giles nabbed Newmarket's fourth run in the fifth, when he raced to third on a fumble at second base. Cunningham went out on a fly to Ted Heaney, and Gibney, who went safe to first by virtue of another fumble, was left there when Peters went out on a fly.

White got Aurora's second run when he hit to second base, stole third and came home nicely.

Tuesday, Chuck VanZant and Hilton went out on flies in the Newmarket half of the sixth. Ted Heaney walked, and got to third.

Shatka hit to first to give Aurora two men on bases. The hitting jinx which had haunted Yakes throughout the game was still with him, however, and he went out on a fly ball to retire the side.

Teams—Newmarket: C. VanZant, C. B. VanZant, Webster, P. Peters, I. Giles, 2b; Tunny, 3b; Hilton, ss; Gibney, rf; Smith, cf; Cunningham, lf.

Aurora: Shatka, c; Shore, p; Yakes, 1b; T. Heaney, 2b; Helmkey, 3b; Hunter, ss; Shropshire, rf; White, cf; W. Heaney, lf. Umpires: Molyneux and Wilson.

Then came the epic last inning that turned the fans to fanatics. Shropshire led off with a hit to first. Helmkey went out on a fly to Cunningham and Ted Heaney fanned. Shore laced out a two-bagger and Shropshire came home to cut down the Newmarket lead to one run.

EVERSLEY W. M. S. WILL MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE

Wednesday afternoon of next week, June 15, is the golden jubilee of Eversley W.M.S. The service is to be held in Eversley church at 2 p.m. standard time. All former members and friends are invited to be present.

Mr. John McAllister attended the funeral of the late Rev. Byron Snell, at Aurora, on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. McAllister remained at "Scots Wha Hae," visiting Miss A. A. Ferguson.

John Gordon, B.A., and a friend, hiked from Edmonton, where John had attended the College of Education. They spent the weekend with his cousin, Mrs. Pinnington, at "The Pines" cottage.

These two young men, while pumping water at "Scots Wha Hae," dislodged a nest of young spiders. There was a web full of freshly hatched spiders, and quite a number fell into the pail of water. They did not drown, but kept climbing over each other, on the surface of the water. They were very minute, but a magnifying glass showed them up as having yellow bodies, with a triangular black mark on their backs. This season must be the seventh, the year for so many bugs and worms and spiders to come in large numbers. Gardeners should get one pound of arsenate of lead, divide it into ounces, and add one ounce to 10 gallons of water and spray anything in the garden which may be attacked by an enemy of this kind. The caterpillars on apple-trees require a much stronger spray, probably 40 or 50 gallons of water to the pound.

Members of the Ferguson clan will please note that Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Graham will not be present at the clan re-union on June 25. They are on the high seas on their way to Finland to visit that country in the interest of the Finlanders in this country. Kingsley Graham, a young lawyer in Toronto, is the Finnish consul in Canada. Mrs. Graham was Ellen Ferguson, daughter of the late Dr. A. K. Ferguson.

A pretty booklet of poems was received from the pen of Miss Muriel Jenkins, a teacher in Toronto schools, but in her girlhood days a pupil of Eversley school and of Aurora high school. The poem "The Lake on the Mountain," tells in poetical language legends concerning the district of the Bay of Quinte, and the small lake on the top of a mountain there. It is an ambitious effort, very readable and full of the sweet sympathy of the author.

A trousseau tea was given at Mrs. Donald Ransom's home on Saturday afternoon and evening, for her cousin, Miss Gertrude Patton of Lasky, Miss Patton, whose mother passed away recently, and her father, George Patton, some time earlier, has sold her home in Lasky and is about to marry Alvin Walker, brother of Ross and Cecil Walker of King City, who is employed by General Motors at Kirkland Lake, where the newly married couple will reside. Miss Gertrude Patton will be missed. She has lived all her life in Lasky and has been associated with Lasky community activities. She was a valuable member of Lasky dramatic club, being leading lady in several popular plays.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Slater of Lansing took place on Wednesday afternoon, the interment being in King City cemetery. Mrs. Slater lived in King City for several years. The late Mr. Slater was a printer, and was a deaf mute. He was a very clever and capable man, and Mrs. Slater was a remarkably clever woman. After Mr. Slater's death, Mrs. Slater lived in Lansing with her brother, where after a serious illness, she died on Tuesday. She had many friends among her King City neighbors, who mourn her passing.

The annual sectional meeting of section four of Toronto Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the new community hall, Nobleton, last Wednesday. The 10th line Presbyterian church, Beza auxiliary, were hostesses, and provided a dinner and lunch generously. Mrs. D. McIntyre of Newmarket presided. Mrs. Cunningham of Richmond Hill, also vice-president with Mrs. McIntyre, was present, but owing to ill health did not preside. Several of the Eversley ladies attended. Miss A. A. Ferguson gave the morning Bible reading, and the Misses Jessie Gellatly and Ethel Ferguson sang a duet, with Mrs. Tolling at the organ.

KING KING BOY WINS TRIP TO CHICAGO

The annual livestock judging competition of the York County Junior Farmers and achievement day for the York County Junior Institutes were held at Richmond Hill last Thursday, with 46 boys and 88 girls competing. Of the boys, 11 were competing for the first time and about one-third of the girls were taking part in their first competition.

MANY owners say a new G-E Refrigerator saves enough money each month to pay its own cost. They calculate it saves up to 20% on perishable food bills. Figure out what that would mean to you. By keeping food fresh a G-E Refrigerator enables you to buy in quantities at week-end bargain prices. It prevents waste by preserving "left-overs". It uses so little current and the upkeep cost is almost nothing. Don't think you're being economical by doing without a G-E Refrigerator. It's much more thrifty to have one.

Quite a few people turned out to the illustrated Bible talk and pictures in the Sunday-school room on Monday evening last, conducted by Rev. Mr. Allnutt of Toronto. Mrs. G. Murray is away at Kingston attending the funeral of her grandmother who died in Toronto. Miss Mary Ellen Law had an accident when out with some other children with her pony and cart. The cart upset in the ditch and the children were thrown out underneath. Mary had her left arm fractured and the rest got some bruises. Her arm will be in a cast for three weeks. Quite a number from here attended field day at Mount Albert on Saturday last. The Meyer picnic will be held on July 6 at Jackson's Point. Mrs. E. Proffitt has moved to town. Mr. and Mrs. Madill from the west have been visiting Miss Julia Madill.

THE OSTREKOFF JEWELS

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

A GREAT NOVEL OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

SYNOPSIS

Wilfred Haven, attaché of the American embassy in Petrograd, leaves the Russian capital during the 1917 Bolshevik upheaval, carrying with him the Ostrekoff family jewels, worth millions. They are to be delivered in London to Princess Elisabeth Ostrekoff as her only inheritance from her parents, who are under sentence of death by the revolutionists. Anna Kastellane, whom Haven rescued from a Petrograd mob, accompanies him to the Polish border, where he is "kidnapped" by three Cossacks. They accompany him through a number of death-dealing adventures as far as Warsaw. There he finds Anna Kastellane, who has brought his baggage with her. He suspects the girl of being a Russian agent and partly confirms it when he sees her in conversation with Polish police and army officials. The latter make clear their wishes to obtain the jewels, but Haven outwits them. Through Anna's efforts he is able to hire a plane and she accompanies him. He awakens the next morning to find himself disarmed and the plane under the direction of two Polish army officers.

One of the officers was known to Haven and Anna Kastellane. Colonel Patinsky introduced Captain Esterhazy. Patinsky had been fooled by Haven in an attempt to obtain the jewels. Haven was an object of murderous hatred, but his diplomatic status served to protect him. He instructed Anna how to act in the event of physical encounter.

Haven overpowers Esterhazy, recovers his own revolver along with two others. The plane runs into a heavy snowstorm and is in danger of crashing. Esterhazy reveals that he and Patinsky intended to drop Haven and Anna at widely separated places after obtaining the jewels. By using their wits and nerve Haven and Anna assume the mastery.

CHAPTER 16 CONTINUED

"He will probably dislike me more before I've finished," Haven growled.

In due course the food and brandy were placed upon the table.

Olav brought vodka and whisky and a small bottle of champagne which he presented to Anna. Patinsky smiled across the aisle wistfully.

"Could we not join up and make a feast of it?" he suggested.

"You stay right where you are," Haven enjoined. "The farther away you are, Patinsky, the better I like you."

"There is mademoiselle to be considered," Patinsky continued with an amorous smile.

"Mademoiselle is not thinking very much of me at the moment, but I think she prefers her present company to yours," Haven declared sharply.

"So much so," Anna sighed, "that I am really regretting that while I had the chance I did not pull the trigger. You two—Captain Esterhazy—I suppose you would add, of the flying corps—and you, Colonel Patinsky, of the Polish cavalry—are of the type whom no woman, or man either, for that matter, should trust. I have trusted you to some small extent—and look at my predicament. If it had not been for my companion you would have ignored altogether the bargain I made with you. You would murder him, you would rob him of his property and you would get rid of me and save your consciences by delivering me over to General Grotzowill. Listen to what I am saying, my friend," she went on, laying her hand upon Haven's arm. "I am speaking the truth. They are not to be trusted, either of them. They are of the type who would break their word of honor to God."

"Mademoiselle, I fear, does not like us," Esterhazy sighed. "Yet we have worked together, she and I. I could give our amiable friend, Mr. Haven, who seems now to be in such great favor, a little account of our last adventure which I am sure would thrill him."

"Hear the officer and gentleman!" Anna scoffed. "A spy, too, you know, Nicolas Esterhazy. You are a spy, are you not?"

Esterhazy stiffened in his place. It was a terrible word to use even with no listeners around. A streak of the unhealthy color reappeared in his face.

"A spy? No," he declared vehemently. "A few weeks I passed in the intelligence department of my government. During that period there may have been episodes. 'Ah, who cares?' Anna Kastellane cried scornfully. "What about you, Patinsky? An officer and a gentleman, yes? You are not by any chance a thief?"

"What if I am?" Patinsky sneered. "Today the world is topsy-turvy. We leave our morals in pawn and we play our own hands. Wilfred Haven, permit me to ask you a question. You consider yourself the owner of this plane?"

"Absolutely," was the prompt rejoinder. "It is mine by right of conquest. At the same time," he went on, his eyes fixed steadily upon his enemies, "I am always willing to make it mine by right of purchase."

"Then, if it is yours, what are you going to do with it?" Patinsky asked quietly.

"I feel a gentle impulse to be creeping over me," he confessed. "I shall fight against it. I shall keep my mouth closed."

"It would be convenient to know," Patinsky sighed.

"Then you may prepare for the worst," was the urbane reply.

Later on the wind died down. Even the clouds disappeared and the plane rode smoothly southward under a clear starlit sky. Anna Kastellane alone of the quartet, after the remains of their meal had been carried away, once or twice closed her eyes and dozed.

The three men, face to face with the climax of their journey, made no attempt to sleep. Esterhazy and Patinsky talked in a low tone throughout the night. Haven brooded in somewhat sullen silence.

Odessa meant nothing to him. He knew little of the place or its possibilities, nor had he any idea as to how far it had been affected by the revolution. Toward the small hours of the morning his two companions, who had been talking earnestly together for more than an hour, appeared to come to a decision. Patinsky leaned over toward him.

"Mr. Haven," he pointed out, "I wonder if it has occurred to you that if we carry out your own instructions, you will find yourself stranded, probably penniless, and with the young lady to look after in one of the worst cities of Europe?"

"I certainly don't figure out that it's quite as bad as that," Haven replied, with all the confidence in his tone which he was very far from feeling.

"Be so good as to reflect," Patinsky begged. "So far as Russia is concerned, the civil war is practically over. The revolution has spread to Odessa, the Reds are holding the city, and all private property is being confiscated until arrangements are made for its distribution. Now we will speak in plain words without any more of this fencing. What chance do you have of retaining in your possession the Ostrekoff jewels, which already belong to the state? Their value is known all over the world. The revolutionists of Odessa will make you very welcome, but their welcome will be little better for you than the mud and snow and vultures of the Divnoff Marshes."

"Sounds depressing," Haven observed, "but get on with it."

"Your whole mission," Patinsky proceeded, with a wave of the hand, an appreciative gleam in his languorous eyes, and a note of respect in his tones, "has been one of chivalry. You accepted a trust and you have done as much as any man in the world could have done toward carrying it out. Nevertheless—it is time you abandoned it. Neither Esterhazy nor I are men of violence. I propose that we come to a friendly agreement, one of the conditions being that we shall do our best to see you through the dangers of Odessa and get you by some means or other into a neutral or friendly country."

"And the other conditions?" Patinsky removed from his mouth the cigarette which he had just lit and waved his hand in a graceful gesture.

"That we divide the jewels you are carrying into three portions as nearly as possible equal in value, and that they be distributed between yourself, Nicolas Esterhazy and myself. Even the third share in the value of these jewels is a great fortune, and if your conscience impels you to persevere in your trust, you will still be in a position to fulfill it to some extent."

Haven followed his companion's example and lit a cigarette.

"What about the young lady?" he asked, after a few minutes of apparent reflection.

Patinsky sighed. "Concerning Anna Kastellane," he admitted, "there is only one possible course open to us. We must, on our homeward way, leave her at General Grotzowill's chateau. I do not think," Patinsky continued, with a slow but ugly smile, "that the young lady will greatly object. Grotzowill is the most powerful man in Poland today. He is certain to be the founder of our new state and, to be quite frank with you, neither of us dare disappoint him."

Wilfred Haven, aged 26, a graduate from Harvard, whose home address was 5th avenue, poured himself out a drink and sipped it thoughtfully.

"What a precious pair of blackguards you two are," he remarked. Esterhazy sprang angrily to his feet, but his companion pulled him down. The two men talked together in rapid incomprehensible Polish.

Finally it was Patinsky who remained spokesman.

"Which is worse," he asked, "indecisive or blackguardism? If you are blackguards, you are an indecisive—and frankly, I prefer my own position. You can insult us as much as you wish now, but if you refuse to make friends with us, you will spend tomorrow night, in the fortress of St. Joseph at Odessa, which many people have declared to be a most unpleasant

A NONCONFORMIST ORDER OF SERVICE

By Rev. R. R. McMath

Article 1

Considerable interest has been aroused in the order of service in the non-conformist churches. Oftentimes the interest has led to heat without much light. All this article proposes to do is deepen the interest.

Our fathers were satisfied to preach, pray and sing psalms. Sometimes they stood and sometimes they sat. Sometimes they even turned their backs to the preacher when at prayer. Often the psalms or hymns were chosen after the time service should have started. Today we believe everything should be done decently and in order. God is a God of order and our minds work orderly; hence the service should be conducted orderly. Our fathers boasted of a simple service and to be simple it should begin, go somewhere and end. With that direct and simple psychology it is proposed to divide the service into four.

1. The Approach. In every Christian service, or any service for that matter, there must be the individual approach. One will enter the church laughing and seemingly in good humor. And remember the adjudicator at the music festival said there is a difference between being solemn and being serious. He said you can laugh and be serious. So even laughter may be a serious approach. Another may enter with that very solemn face place. You will be found with loot from Petrograd in your possession, loot which the government will be only too glad to take over. You have no earthly chance of escape unless you kill both of us, Olav and the pilot. I do not think you will take that risk."

"There may be human beings in Odessa," Haven meditated.

"There are indeed," Patinsky agreed. "But human beings are pretty much the same all the world over, when it comes to a matter of two or three million pounds."

There was a brief silence. Esterhazy poured out more brandy. His companion followed his example. Haven, ever watchful, lit a cigarette and sat with folded arms.

"Are we to understand," Patinsky inquired—"I am perhaps mistaken but I am judging only from your aloof attitude—that our proposals are rejected?"

"Most emphatically you can," was the curt reply.

"You are a crazy young man," Esterhazy deplored. "Without our help you have not one chance in a million of getting out of Odessa alive."

Haven looked across at them reproachfully. He was very young and human life had always seemed a sacred thing to him.

"I ought to have killed you both," he groaned.

ing in front of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa was erected by public subscription and a memoir of his life, under the title, "The Secret of Heroism," written by the present Prime Minister of Canada, the Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King. The essays are based on a reading of this book, copies of which were presented to the students by Sir William, who has also awarded the prizes.

Mr. McCulley received the following telegram from Prime Minister King: I am deeply disappointed in finding that my parliamentary duties render it impossible for me to be present at the dinner being held at Pickering College this Wednesday evening for presentation of the Harper memorial essay prizes. Few things in life have touched me more deeply than the kindness of Sir William Mulock in making known to the students of Pickering College the little memoir I wrote many years ago of a friend of my college days, Henry Albert Harper, and in having them come to know something of the high purpose and fine achievement of his young and brave life. Thirty-seven years ago Sir William and Harper and I were all working together in the establishment of a department of the government of Canada which would have to do with those problems of social justice which have become the great questions of today. How I should have welcomed the opportunity to have been present with Sir William and yourself to have shared with you both in extending heartfelt congratulations to the winners of the Harper memorial essay contest. Perhaps you would be so kind as to express on my behalf to all who entered the competition my warm appreciation of the thought and study they have given to the life and character of the one who in the days of youth and early manhood was my closest friend. Perhaps too you would add a word of special greeting and congratulations to those who by their essays appeared to have caught the clearest glimpse of his spirit. May one and all long be spared to realize in their own lives and to impart to others something of the secret which inspired the heroism of Harper's life. W. L. Mackenzie King.

Final awards were made to Gordon Hay, West Hill; John Hall, Norwalk. Honorable mention was given to Charles Lanier, Leithbridge; Edward Mack, Toronto; Barney Apple, Toronto.

Assistance in judging was given by Mr. Denis Mungovan, B.A., of the Newmarket high school.

to re-create by doing spiritual and mental things on Sunday.

"Is sport on the sabbath essentially wrong?"

"It would be all right for people who have been doing mental and spiritual work all the week and who have had no other opportunity for sport during the week. For instance, my sabbath is on Monday."

"I usually find that people who spend Sunday on sports have had ample time for sports during the week. In Montreal we have people working 72 hours a week, who have had no opportunity for sports during the week. I don't object to those people going away to a park to spend Sunday."

"Who is to say when people have had sufficient sports during the week?"

"When I have had an hour and a half on the gym floor, I am prepared for another week's work."

"Our present economic order is so badly adjusted that people don't get enough free time," Mr. Matthews continued. "Our employers are abusing the privilege of employing."

"Do you see any difference between one sport and another?"

"Yes. If you can, play a game without a competitive spirit in it. Paddling a canoe or swimming are good sports."

"Is golf competitive when you play by yourself?"

"Yes, for you are playing against par. Your thoughts don't wander to God, especially when you are in a bunker."

"Is a competitive sport to be condemned on any day?"

"Surely," Mr. Matthews said. "God doesn't want us to be physically idle on Sunday," continued Mr. Matthews. "I think our forefathers were wrong. God is always doing creative things."

Mr. Matthews related how when he was a student preacher in Saskatchewan he found that there was a baseball game being carried on in competition with his services. He told the players, a group of farm boys, that he would play baseball with them if they would go to the service with him afterwards.

"They agreed to do so, and it wasn't long before they suggested that we should have the service first and the baseball afterwards."

The Era's interview with Mr. Matthews was made possible through the courtesy of Rev. R. R. McMath, Trinity pastor, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brooks.
